

Raegan Aleman Grade 7 Teacher, French Teacher

Raegan Aleman is a graduate from the Bachelor of Education/Drama program at the University of Alberta. Originally from Red Deer and raised by two teachers, she has made teaching kids a priority in her life and has spent many years in various educational roles and settings. She also has an extensive theatre background, having graduated with her Diploma in Theatre Performance and Creation from Red Deer College in 2013. Most recently, Raegan has been involved with the improv community in Edmonton after performing with the University Improv Group and Rapid Fire Theatre for 6 years, and founding her own company in 2018. She now teaches improv at the WISE as an extracurricular class. Raegan is a strong proponent for cross-curricular approaches to education and storytelling, interwoven with the arts and movement, and is excited about teaching here at the WISE!

Having started with the WISE in 2019, Raegan has since fallen in love with this school and its community of compassionate and dedicated staff, families, and students. She is especially inspired by the progressive values upheld in the Waldorf curriculum, and by the natural beauty celebrated within the school. She couldn't be more excited to continue her journey as an educator within this community, and she looks forward to what the future has in store.
